

National French Fry Day

Check out some neat french fry facts on the french fries below!

Thomas Jefferson, who was acting as the American Minister to France, introduced french fries to America.

People are unsure where french fries were invented. Most people think they were invented in Belgium, where they used to eat a lot of fried fish. When the river froze over one night, they decided to fry potatoes instead.

Americans eat more than 16 pounds of french fries every day!

McDonald's is responsible for more than 1/3 of french fry sales in the U.S. each year.

A lot of chefs will fry their french fries twice, allowing the fries to have a more crisp and crunchy texture!